Detroit Shoppers Throng Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—As more than 25,000 Detroit shoppers flocked across the border into Windsor today, Mayor Arthur Reame and local retailers and meat packers held an emergency conference in an effort to solve the city's meat shortage problem.

Thousands of U.S. citizens have bought goods rationed in the U.S. during shopping expeditions here in the past few months and the meeting was called to ensure Windsor residents would not go short as a result of heavy American purchases.

Late Season Makes Farm Labor Scarce

EDMONTON (CP)—Lateness of spring will make the need for farm labor on the prairies and in British Columbia more serious, it was stated here today following a two-day western farm labor conference.

George V. Haythorne of Ottawa, Associate Director of National Selective Service in charge of agriculture, forestry and fisheries sections, was chairman of the conference.

In addition to federal officials, the conference was attended by farm labor directors and agricultural employment advisers in the four western provinces.

Train Jap Children To Throw Grenades

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Japan was reported by radio Tokyo today to be training children to throw hand grenades in defence of the empire.

Another Tokyo broadcast asserted "widespread speculation in all quarters of the globe, except Japan" over peace offers has become "a source of annoyance" to a "reliable" Japanese authority.

The authority added: "Japan is too much occupied with keeping the war going."

One of these preoccupations, said radio Tokyo, is the building of 5,000 semi-underground homes in bomb-pocked Tokyo from materials obtained from blasted buildings.

No Prisoners of War To Be Worked in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Arthur MacNamara, federal Deputy Minister of Labor, today announced that "there is no intention of using prisoners of war in B.C."

The announcement was made following a protest made at a meeting of the Vancouver, New Westminster and District Trades and Labor Council (A.F.L.) Tuesday night, regarding a rumor that prisoners of war might be brought to this province to work in logging camps.

Former Victorian Slated To Head Army In Pacific

LT. GEN. GUY SIMONDS

OTTAWA (CP)—A reliable source said here today the Canadian division which would fight in the Pacific as the Far East Force would be called the 6th Division and probably would be commanded by Lt. Gen. Guy Simonds, 41, of Kingston, Ont., formerly of Victoria, B.C.

Referring to Prime Minister King's announcement Sunday night in Edmonton that the force would consist of 30,000 men, the source here said this likely would be a combat division of about 12,000, an independent armored brigade of about 3,000, together with an equal number of reinforcements for each.

The C.F.E.F. probably will be concentrated at Aldershot, N.S., Camp Borden, Ont., and Shilo, Man., in brigade groups for preliminary training and placement and then will move as a single formation to an unspecified United States training ground. It is reported here this operation must be completed by Sept. 1.

Use Names of Original 1st Division

The new 6th Division, which will have no affiliation with the former 6th Division of N.R.M.A. troops who served on Pacific coast defences, will be made up of the original units of the Canadian 1st Division, although the troops will be drawn from volunteers from the whole army establishment of 450,000 men.

The names of the 1st Division units are being used in the Pacific war because, it was learned, they seemed to be the fairest geographical representation.

The 6th Division will wear a unique composite shoulder patch hexagonal in shape and made up of six triangular slits. The slits will be in the colors of the five Canadian overseas divisions and the black of the overseas independent armored brigade.

When a soldier volunteers for the C.F.E.F. he will be given a miniature hexagon patch to be

Japs Pulling Out Of Coastal Area Around Foochow

By SPENCER MOOSA CHUNGKING (AP)—Chinese troops have completely reoccupied the strategic east coast port city of Foochow in an area where the Japanese have feared Allied landings, the high command announced today. There were indications the enemy already had withdrawn or was in the process of withdrawing from the coastal region around the port.

There were signs that the Japanese in the area were slipping up the coast by ships in the night toward Shanghai.

There also were indications that the Japanese at Wenchow, some 220 miles south of Shanghai, might follow the example of those at Foochow, and that those at Amoy and Swatow were preparing to withdraw southward to Hongkong. All these ports are exposed to bombing from Philippine bases and are virtually cut off from Japan and Formosa.

Japanese garrisons, in each instance a few thousand at the most, have virtually no offensive capability against any forces which might land on the China coast, and in defensive operations would face annihilation.

May Withdraw To North of Yellow

Some observers in Chungking foresaw a possibility of Japanese abandonment of southeast Asia in favor of positions north of the Yellow River, with the enemy evacuation from Burma to Thailand as the first step.

The Chinese High Command said Chinese troops had broken into Foochow Thursday night and had completed recapture of the city by Friday morning.

A dispatch to the newspaper Ta Kung Pao said enemy remnants were in flight to the north-east.

Meanwhile, there were persistent reports here that the Japanese were preparing to evacuate several pockets along the China coast between Hangchow Bay and Hongkong, all of which might become death traps if any sizeable forces should land nearby. The points reported affected include Swatow, Amoy and possibly Wenchow.

Now Disclosed 'Lizzie', Valiant Sunk At Alexandria, Refloated

LONDON (Reuter)—The story of two Italian sailors who slipped into Alexandria harbor and caused severe damage to two British battleships, the Queen Elizabeth and the Valiant, was told here for the first time in dispatches from Alexandria today.

The two battleships were anchored at Alexandria in January, 1942, when a midge Italian submarine crept into the harbor in the wake of a British destroyer. Two enemy sailors attached explosive charges known as "limpets" on the bilge keels of the two battleships.

The two men then climbed on the anchor chains and one sailor is believed to have climbed on the deck of the Valiant.

They were discovered by the ship's crew and taken down into the magazine, where they were told that unless they told where the bombs were planted, they would blow up with the ship. This unnerved them and they told the whole story—but too late. The time fuses of the charges blew off, the charges blew holes in the ships' bottoms and both settled on the mud in the harbor.

It is understood no damage was done to the superstructures of the ships and none of the magazines blew up.

The Queen Elizabeth was patched up, taken through the Suez Canal and went under her own steam to a United States harbor for repairs. The Valiant was repaired sufficiently to proceed under her own steam to drydock.

It is believed neither the German nor Italian high command learned of the result of the submarine action.

Canadian Soldiers Serving In Pacific Get $10 Extra Monthly

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian soldiers volunteering for the Pacific war theatre will get roughly $10 extra a month in campaign pay. It was announced today by Defence Headquarters.

An increase of 30 cents a day will bring their pay to about $54 a month, compared with about $45 paid for service in the European theatre.

The Canadians will serve against the Japanese with United States troops who get $60 monthly for service in combat areas. However, American combat infantrymen get $70.

States Yugoslav Army Chieftain Acts Like Hitler

By NOLAND NORGAARD

ROME (AP)—Field Marshal Alexander, Allied Commander in the Mediterranean theatre, charged Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia today with the apparent intention of establishing claims in northwest Italy and southern Austria by force of arms, which was "all too reminiscent of Hitler, Mussolini and Japan."

He disclosed that his efforts to "come to a friendly agreement" with the Yugoslav leader had failed.

At the same time Allied headquarters disclosed Tito had agreed in July, 1944, and February, 1945, that for military purposes Allied forces should occupy the Venezia and Giulia region, including Trieste, while the Yugoslavs should occupy Fiume and an area to the east of a line running roughly north of Fiume.

The British Field Marshal, charging that Tito sought "by force of arms and military occupation to establish his claims," added that "it was to prevent such actions that we have been fighting this war."

The Allied commander declared:

"It is our duty to hold these disputed territories as trustees until their ultimate disposal is settled at the peace conference."

"I tried my best to come to a friendly agreement with Marshal Tito, but did not succeed."

Tito's Reply Causes Surprise at Embassy

A Belgrade dispatch said Marshal Tito's reply to British and U.S. suggestions that no frontiers be changed before the peace conference caused "surprise and disappointment at the U.S. embassy, which immediately dispatched the Marshal's reply to the State Department in Washington." Contents of the note were not made public.

The Yugoslav Foreign Office also declined to reveal the contents of the note, but the Ministry of Information planned a statement, possibly later today, amplifying the Yugoslav point of view concerning the disputed territory of Venezia and Giulia. The territory went to Italy after the first Great War.)

The British leader, referring to what he said were Tito's desires to incorporate Venezia, Giulia and part of Austria into Yugoslavia, declared that "we have no objection to the claims being put forward by Marshal Tito," but he insisted the Allied policy was that such claims should be settled only at the peace conference.

The statement was in the form of a message to Allied armed forces in the Mediterranean theatre. Alexander told his troops the purpose of the message was that they "may know the issues which are now at stake."

Referring to the agreement by Tito in July, 1944, and February, 1945, Allied Field headquarters said Tito rejected its terms when that agreement was taken to Belgrade May 8.

Tito said at Belgrade that "an understanding could not now be reached on the basis suggested, and that recent events had changed the situation."

Orlando 85 Today

ROME (AP)—Victor Emmanuel Orlando, last surviving member of the "Big Four" of the First Great War, is 85 years old today.

MARSHAL TITO

Tito further as saying the problem involving the disputed territories in Italy and Russia "was now a political one, and not a military one," and insisted Yugoslavia had a right as one of the Allies to occupy territories her troops conquered, and did not intend to withdraw from the area east of the Isonzo River, which they now hold.

The statement declared that Tito likewise informed the Allied command that his civil administration in the disputed areas should remain in control and told Alexander's Chief of Staff, Lt. Gen. W. D. Morgan, who carried the written proposal to Belgrade, that "at the peace conference he would also claim territory west of the Isonzo."

Partisans Withdraw West of Isonzo

TRIESTE (AP)—Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisan troops now have withdrawn completely from the area west of the Isonzo River, United States military authorities said today, but there was no indication of any movement from Trieste or the remainder of the disputed area east of the river.

There was no confirmation of reports that Tito had agreed to make such a move.

(The BBC's European service said civil authority for Trieste had been handed over to an Italo-Slovene executive committee at ceremonies attended by British, U.S., and Russian missions. The executive committee was said to have announced democratic elections would take place as soon as possible.)

Russian Paper Backs Yugoslavs

MOSCOW (AP)—Izvestia, official government newspaper, printed today an interview with Edward Kerdel, assistant president of the Yugoslav Council of Ministers, upholding Yugoslav claims to Trieste.

Kerdel stated that not only Trieste but Istria and the Slovenian maritime district were liberated exclusively by the Yugoslav army's own forces.

"From a formal standpoint," he said, "it is fully natural that the Yugoslav army has the same rights on territory it occupied as have the rest of the Allied armies which occupied alien territory during the war."

"This territory is not alien, but our own national land," he added, "forcibly taken from Yugoslavia in the past."

Say They Meet Demands of Honor

LONDON (CP)—The Belgrade radio, quoting Marshal Tito's reply to notes sent by Britain and the United States, said today that the "honor of our army and the honor of our country demand the presence of the Yugoslav Army in Istria, Trieste and the Slovene coastline."

Allies Experiment At Aachen With Schooling of Young Germans

By DANIEL DE LUCE
AACHEN, Germany (AP)—Re-education of German youth seems slated to be an international point of disagreement to be discussed as much as "reparations in kind" and "war criminals."

Each of the four occupying powers prefers a different system of education, but between the British and United States occupation zones close co-ordination of the school programs seems assured.

Aachen, ruled by the American Military Government since last October, is today's most advanced experiment in what will be a long-continuing research on how to make German classrooms safe for democracy.

This war-wrecked city which had a prewar population of 185,000, now is a community of 15,000 children, women and old men. Bombing forced the 40 schools to close a year ago and most of the pupils were evacuated to the countryside.

Next month, if Allied Supreme Headquarters approval is given, classes are scheduled to resume for the first time. They will be limited to the first four grades, with facilities for 600 students.

An appointed panel of "patient citizens," whether or not with tongue in cheek, selected a school director of mixed German and Jewish blood, explaining it was because of his idea that "our future citizens must be citizens of the world and not merely of greater Germany."

All available textbooks published by the Nazi regime were confiscated early in the occupation. But printing presses under American supervision are turning out 20,000 copies of a beginners' reader and an arithmetic book textually identical with those issued in the 1920's by the Weimar republican government.

The beginners' reader is reported to be devoted to innocuous legends and anecdotes with no manifest attempt to glorify German prowess. The arithmetic is said to hide no ideological propaganda.

In addition to these subjects, music and drawing may be taught. What children 10 years of age or older will do for schooling is a problem no U.S. authority in Aachen has yet taken up. But in the present American occupation zone, virtually every town and village is making representations for permission to get the education of the younger children restarted on at least the same basis as in Aachen.

Election Campaign Warms Up As Party Leaders Address Country

By Canadian Press
The tempo of federal electioneering quickened across Canada Friday and Friday night, and electors heard almost simultaneous appeals from the leaders of the three major parties seeking election at the polls June 11.

Prime Minister King spoke at Edmonton, seat of Alberta's Social Credit government, while earlier John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, had spoken briefly at Chateau, Ont.

M. J. Coldwell, leader of the C.C.F. party, made an address Friday night over a national CBC network from San Francisco, which city he left today to begin an intensive cross-country campaign tour.

SPEAKS FROM TRAIN
Mr. Bracken, in a short speech to a crowd that greeted him aboard his train at Chateau, Ont., on his way to Kenora where he will speak today, was critical of the King government. In reference to a previous speech by Prime Minister King from Vancouver, he charged that Mr. King had appealed that the Liberal government should not be judged on any one issue because he was afraid Canadians would judge the government on its "cowardly manpower policy."

OUTLINES PLATFORM
In his radio address from San Francisco, Mr. Coldwell gave an outline of his party's platform. It included a good job or training for all ex-service personnel; full employment for all willing to work; steadily rising purchasing power along with increasing farm prices; an opportunity for farmers to feed hungry peoples of the world at a fair return and a flat payment of old age benefits to everyone reaching 60, poor or rich.

Mr. Coldwell said his party would establish "social ownership and control of giant monopolies; provide for conversion of government-owned war plants to peacetime production; sponsor planned housing programs, slum clearance and regional development."

Other measures would be legislation "setting up fair social and labor standards" coupled with national marketing legislation to ensure parity prices and a system of "planned trade."

G. G. McGeer to Run As Parks Commissioner

VANCOUVER (CP)—G. G. (Gerry) McGeer, K.C., Liberal M.P. for Vancouver-Burrard in the last Parliament, said in an interview following a federal election rally here Friday night, that he will be a candidate for the parks commission at the December civic elections in Vancouver. "Don't think I'm going to quit the public service of Vancouver or British Columbia just because I'm not going back to Ottawa," Mr. McGeer said. "I have decided to stay at home and go to work here because I am satisfied there is more work to be done here than could be done in Ottawa."

Mr. McGeer, former mayor of Vancouver, is not a candidate in the June 11 federal general election.

First Big Halibut Shipment Delivered Here

Some 70,000 pounds of freshly-caught halibut arrived in Victoria Friday afternoon on the first trip down from northern B.C. waters of the big packer Eastisle, 72-ton vessel of B.C. Packers Ltd., Ogden Point. Unloaded at the plant, the fish will be washed, headed, glazed with a thin coating of ice, and stored for future consumption.

The packer drew her load at Blaine Myers Camp, Bull Harbor, where fishermen, despite bad weather, had brought in recent sizable catches from fishing grounds off Cape Scott, Triangle Island, and the Goose Island banks.

Skipped by Capt. Leith Nordahl and with a crew of five aboard, this is the vessel's second season in operation. She can pack 125,000 pounds of fish load-down.

Col. Chambers Opens Campaign Monday

Lt.-Col. Alan Chambers, D.S.O., Liberal candidate for Nanaimo Riding, will open his campaign for re-election to the House of Commons, with meetings on Monday at Pultford Harbor, on Salt Spring Island; Tuesday at Mayne Island and Galiano Island; Wednesday at Saturna Island and Pender Island; Friday at Brechin (Nanaimo), and Saturday at Shawnigan Lake.

He will address the electors over radio station CJVI for 15 minutes at 6.30, Friday evening. Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., Progressive Conservative candidate, will spend the first part of next week campaigning at Nanaimo.

He is scheduled to return to Victoria Thursday, and campaign in the Royal Oak and Cordova Bay districts Friday.

200 Women Hear Liberal Speakers

The Liberal government did not wait until the eve of an election to bring forth plans for the Canadian people, Tom Reid, who represented the constituency of New Westminster in the federal House, told nearly 200 women at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce, Friday afternoon.

Mr. Reid, with Mrs. Nancy Hodges, M.L.A., spoke in support of R. W. Mayhew, Liberal candidate for Victoria, riding in the forthcoming election. "The election this time like the election of 1940 is a very serious one; the Liberal government under Mackenzie King has carried out its trust to the utmost of its ability," Mr. Reid said.

He referred to committees that were set up in 1940 to bring forth plans on social legislation. Canada's peak of employment before the war was 3,500,000, and following the war employment will be needed for 4,500,000, he said, adding that the government has planned for the postwar period with these figures before it.

"We have reached half way in our great fight, but the ruthless, barbarous nation of Japan has still to be conquered," Mr. Reid said.

He spoke of the need for the government to have an overall majority following this present election, the results of which, he said, would have an important bearing on the lives of the Canadian people long after the election.

Mrs. Hodges, who returned this week from the World Security Conference at San Francisco, spoke of the spontaneous tributes paid to Canada and the praise given the Canadian delegation to the conference.

Of the Liberal government's past-term in office she singled out the national housing program and family allowances for discussion. "People should be encouraged to have children for there was no better way of filling Canada's unpopulated places than with children of Canadian people," she said.

Mrs. H. I. MacKenzie was chairman.

Stalin Lays Down Conditions For Solution of Polish Question

By EDWARD J. DENNEHY

LONDON (AP)—Premier Stalin let the world know today that he will not consider the disputed arrest of 16 Poles in negotiations for the reorganization of the Warsaw government ordered at Yalta.

"The arrest of the Poles," Mr. Stalin said, "has no connection with the question of reconstruction of the Polish provisional government." These arrests have raised protests in the House of Commons here and in the United States.

Mr. Stalin laid down three "elementary" conditions for solution of the Polish question, the first of them recognition of the present Warsaw government as the basic core of a national unity government. At Yalta Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt pledged recognition of the Warsaw regime as soon as it was organized on a broader basis.

REPLIES TO LETTER

The Russian leader broke his silence on the Polish issue as reports were heard here that arrangements were being pressed for a meeting of the Big Three. His statements were contained in a reply broadcast by the Moscow radio to a letter written by Ralph Parker, Moscow correspondent for the Times of London.

The second condition, Mr. Stalin declared, was that any future Polish government must pursue a friendly policy with Russia, and not a policy of the "cordon sanitaire" against the Soviet Union.

DISMISSES ARRESTS

At the same time Mr. Stalin dismissed as having "no connection" with the Polish issue the arrest of 16 leaders of the Polish underground, which caused repercussions in the United Nations Conference in San Francisco. "These gentlemen were arrested in accordance with the law protecting the Red Army rear from diversionists, a law similar to the British Defence of the Realm Act," Premier Stalin said. "The arrest was carried out by Soviet military authorities in accordance with the agreement between the Polish provisional government and the Soviet military command."

College Bursary Proposed In Memory Of Capt. F. G. Dexter

A fund which had been decided on as a testimonial to the late Capt. F. G. Dexter by a committee representing St. Mary's Guild, the schools (public and private), and other groups in Oak Bay, will be used for the establishment of a bursary to Victoria College, to be called the F. G. Dexter Memorial Bursary, the committee resolved at a recent meeting.

T. C. Rogers was appointed treasurer at an earlier meeting before the death of Capt. Dexter. It is intended the bursary will be open annually to some boy or girl qualifying from the schools of Oak Bay.

A circular is now out to associations and individuals, advising them the fund is now open and a trust account has been opened at the Bank of Montreal, Oak Bay.

The committee hopes that the many friends, old pupils and admirers of Capt. Dexter will show their appreciation of his work by making possible the memorial to him.

Contributions may be made to Mr. Rogers, whose address is 630 Island Road (E 4301), or to the trust account at the bank. A tentative closing date for the fund has been set for June 30.

Premier Chides Tory Leader for Electioneering in Last 3 Years

EDMONTON (CP)—A warning that Canadians must never forget the debt they owe the men of the Dominion's armed forces has been sounded by Prime Minister King.

Speaking extemporaneously after delivering a prepared speech over a provincial radio hook-up, the Prime Minister told Liberal Party workers at a dinner meeting here Friday night he didn't believe people realized what the war had done and declared "we owe a great debt" to the men who served in the forces.

He was not afraid the people would forget, but said he was afraid the problems of the transition period would be great and there might be some "temporary privation" as people transferred from one occupation to another. He chided the Progressive Conservative Party, saying it had "half a dozen names while I've been leader of the Liberal Party" and that it didn't have a leader in the House of Commons during the life of the recent Parliament.

John Bracken, leader of the Progressive Conservatives, would be traveling around the country, "making speeches and getting his photograph taken," but Mr. King asked his listeners to remember "I have been in Parliament all these years among other things."

WIPED OUT POLITICS

"I haven't been devoting my time as organizer of a political party. I wiped out politics when this war began."

In his prepared address, the Prime Minister declared Canada's hope for the future is bound up with the maintenance of peace and international economic co-operation and called for election of Alberta members in the June 11 Federal election who would be in sympathy with the government's policies of co-operation and security and international trade.

The main contest in Alberta, he said, is between the Liberal and Social Credit candidates. "Competent observers already report that in this province, the other parties simply do not count" in the Dominion field and "I am speaking only of differences in policy with respect to external affairs."

"The Liberals believe in and are determined to work to their utmost for the greatest measure of effective co-operation among the nations to keep the peace and to promote trade and industry" while the Social Credit party seems "determined to uphold what they describe as national sovereignty in its most extreme form."

EXPORTS IGNORED

Mr. King said Social Credit members of Parliament had "consistently ignored" the "vital necessity of external trade to the prosperity and welfare of Canada and particularly of Alberta," and warned that the policies of the party, "if followed by any government, would, in no time whatever, lead to a worse depression than we had in the 1930's."

The Prime Minister said it was "impossible" for him to believe the Social Credit members, in their international policies and views on international affairs, had spoken with the "true voice of Alberta" and he was sure people of the province, "who have taken so large a part in the achievement of victory, do not want the fruits of victory thrown away in political isolationism and economic nationalism."

Recently returned from the San Francisco Security Conference where he headed Canada's delegation, he said the conference was not the same as the peace conference and added that the making of peace was a task which could not be started until the fighting was over.

One of the great decisions the people must make in the forthcoming election was as to which party would be the one to send its leader and other representatives to the peace conference. In all probability, a preliminary conference would be held this year.

Mr. King tonight will address a public meeting in Prince Albert, Sask., where he is a candidate in the June voting.

Canada's Europe Army Volunteers For Far East Total 10 Per Cent

By ROSS MUNRO
WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY (CP)—Approximately 10 per cent of Canadian soldiers in Germany and Holland who so far have answered the questionnaire asking their preference for Far East service, occupation force service or demobilization have volunteered for the C.F.E.F. It has been unofficially estimated.

All troops, however, have not filled out the questionnaire yet, and until all replies are tabulated no final report can be given. Combat troops seem more eager to serve in the Far East than do headquarters and lines of communication personnel. Take of instance the Loyal Edmonton, one of Canada's great infantry regiments. From its 800 men there so far are 80 volunteers for Pacific—an even 10 per cent.

Some infantry, tank and artillery regiments have a higher percentage than the Edmonton and some lower, but Canadian army headquarters is reported to have only 1 per cent of volunteers.

Should the final over-all figure be around 10 per cent, it would

Laval Not Yet Shipped to France

BARCELONA (AP)—Pierre Laval, former Vichy Premier, was still confined in a fortress here today, awaiting completion of negotiations on the means of transporting him to France.

(A Paris dispatch earlier had quoted French official spokesmen as saying they believed he was already in France, being taken there by an Allied warship.)

Although there has been no official statement on the status of negotiations regarding Laval, the Spanish government is reported ready to deliver Laval to British and U.S. representatives jointly or separately, but not directly to the French, for transportation to France, possibly by warship.

Laval meanwhile was reported awaiting his fate philosophically. Those who prepare his food said he has a good appetite, showing a preference for cold boiled lobster.

30,000 Canadian Troops, 13,500 Sailors, Big Air Force to Serve In Pacific

EDMONTON (CP)—Canada will send approximately 30,000 soldiers, 13,500 navy personnel and an undetermined number of airmen outside of Canada in the prosecution of the Japanese war. Prime Minister King announced in a statement he issued here Friday night that only those who elected to serve in the Pacific theatre will be sent outside Canada. Soldiers, sailors and airmen will receive special pay. Personnel who return to Canada from active service to join the Pacific forces will be granted 30 days' leave at their homes in addition to any other leave allowed during their training.

Canada's participation in the Japanese war was decided at the Quebec Conference in September, 1944. The "broad lines" of Canadian participation were settled then, said Mr. King.

DETAIL OF FORCE

The Canadian armed forces for the Pacific will be:

1. An infantry division supported "by the appropriate armored and ancillary troops to operate with the United States army."
2. Approximately 13,500 sailors of all ranks "serving afloat in Canadian ships in the Pacific theatre."
3. A scale of R.C.A.F. personnel "not disproportionate to that of the other two services."

Mr. King said the precise character and strength of the R.C.A.F. had not been settled. In the case of airmen they will receive higher allowances similar to that provided to R.A.F. personnel serving in the same area. Soldiers and sailors will receive a special rate of campaign pay, which has been approved. The pay will be in line with that received by British and U.S. personnel serving in the same area. "Every possible opportunity for service with these forces will be given to those who have not, as yet, served overseas," said Mr. King.

Nature of Pacific operations would require inclusion of a high proportion of trained personnel who have had previous operational experience.

Mr. King also said the Canadian naval force of cruisers, light fleet aircraft carriers, destroyers and frigates "will be built up in the Pacific as rapidly as possible."

Victory Loan Subscriptions Rise To All-Time High of $1,535,217,200

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's 8th Victory Loan total now has reached an all-time high of $1,535,217,200, an increase of $35,137,600 over the amount recorded at this time in the 7th Loan last fall, the National War Finance Committee announced today.

Purchases by individuals now stand at $805,560,050, an increase of $55,483,100 over the total at the same date in the 7th Loan. The general canvass produced $593,446,400, $66,186,750 more than last time. Payroll savings canvass accounted for $212,113,650.

The average purchase of all individuals was $267.59, an increase of $31.25 over last loan, despite a decrease of 163,712 in the over-all total of applications, which numbered 3,015,988 this time.

Purchases by large buyers, including corporations, now stand at $729,657,150.

Commenting on the successful conclusion of the three-week campaign, which ended last Saturday, Finance Minister Halsey said:

"Canadians may well be proud of this accomplishment. As was expected, the coming of V-E Day did not mislead them into forgetting the tasks that lie ahead before final victory. The 8th Victory Loan provided an opportunity to express their gratitude for the European triumph, as well as a way to hasten the end of the Pacific struggle and to help meet the man's domestic and international needs arising from the war.

"I want to remind them, however, that the need for saving remains continuous and urgent, and that through the purchase of War Savings Stamps and Certificates they can and should maintain their effort toward the final objectives which inspired their purchases of Victory Bonds."

$50,000,000 Damage By Ontario Floods

TORONTO (CP)—Thousands of acres of low-lying farm lands in western Ontario were inundated from heavy rains and overflowing streams today, and crop losses to Ontario farmers were estimated at more than $50,000,000.

Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, Friday estimated the loss so far between $25,000,000 and $35,000,000. It is expected Ontario's fruit loss will reach 50 per cent of the anticipated crop.

Meteorological officials here predicted relief today from the rain, which in some sections of the province has fallen for two consecutive weeks. Weather experts could not explain the rain and low temperatures which have menaced crops throughout Ontario.

As rain continued to fall Friday, many rivers and streams flooded flat lands where damage to newly-sown fields is estimated at thousands of dollars.

Near Hamilton highway authorities announced the highway had been closed to through traffic. More than one foot of water covered the road in low spots.

CONTROLS AND CONVERSION

THE REALLOCATION OF MATERIALS, from wartime control to enable industry to reconvert to peace-time demand, is not so simple as it appears. In the first place there are comparatively few industries which use the same materials to manufacture a peace-time product. Nor do they use the same quantities of different materials as have been required for war. In the second place there is the question of price control which is principally used as a brake to inflation.

Thus the War Time Production Board, which is responsible for the release of material, may have its efforts nullified by the War Time Price Board having a different objective in view. The intentions of both might be excellent but they are governed by different factors which need recognition if their intentions are to be realized. Calling attention to this fact does not imply any criticism of either of the boards. They are fully aware of the differences between a free market and one that is controlled. But the public, which is chiefly concerned, may not have the same awareness, due to the fact that the relation between price and market can be neglected by the exigencies of war and by the expedients induced by clamor.

Supposing the production board releases the types of materials the manufacturer requires to start production for his peace-time market, and simultaneously the price control for these same materials is cancelled, he still has to hurdle the fact that the finished product, after it has passed through wage controls and emerges on the market designed to the latest fashion, may be price-controlled in order to prevent inflation. The entire costs of production may have been altered by the war and the different costs of the materials embodied in the goods marketed. So that the manufacturer may have no past by which price control can judge the right price for the finished product, and no future when he finally gets his goods on to the market if the price is not in line with demand.

It illustrates precisely the difference between a free market and one that is controlled at any point along the road from raw material to consumer. If the material is freed, then the goods produced from that material should also be freed to allow the manufacturer to decide the price. Otherwise the manufacturer is liable to be emmeshed between one control that is off and one control that is on. He may not want to delay reconversion, but in trying to ascertain how price control may react on his market he may lose his market. In other words he cannot take the risk of getting on with the job unless he knows the lines are all clear.

PROMOTING DISCORD

PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE ARGUMENTS regarding the participation of Canadian forces in the Pacific theatre come approximately eight months too late, according to the statement of Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Following his announcement last night that 30,000 soldiers, 13,500 navy personnel and an undetermined number of airmen would carry the Dominion's colors against the Japanese, he explained that the broad lines of Canada's share in the attack against the final foe had been laid down at the Quebec Conference last September.

While Mr. King again stated service would be undertaken only by those who elected to go to the Pacific, he added: "Every possible opportunity for service with these forces will be given to those who have not, as yet, served overseas."

His announcement appears to have cut the ground from under those who are attempting to go to the voting public with their own special proposals on running the war. As these columns have stated before, partisan politics will not be allowed to intrude in the matter of integrating the Dominion's forces in the Pacific. Nor will the remark of the Victoria Progressive Conservative candidate, that "Mr. King wants to make Zombies in the naval service" carry much weight with those who analyze the situation honestly. The suggestion of the Victoria Progressive Conservative candidate is not apt to sway the considerations of those who have mapped the plans for the war against Japan, even though such irresponsible expressions may create a certain amount of local discord.

POETIC JUSTICE

THERE IS AN ARTISTIC COMBINATION of dramatic irony and poetic justice in the decision which sends Fritz Kuhn, former German-American Bund leader, back to Germany as an undesirable alien. Decision to order his deportation was announced in Washington by the Justice Department yesterday.

Shirless, the once bombastic shirter returns to a shirless country. There he may see the "glories" which Nazism raised for that country razed by the powers of democracy which triumphed over Hitler's evil. There he may see the fine fruits of the crop he sought unsuccessfully to sow in a country which is doing pretty well for itself despite his failure. There is a fine justice in the decision of the United States authorities which sends him from a land he could not mold to his heart's desire, to the ruins of one in which those desires were temporarily achieved.

In another age, one form of punishment found its extremity in banishment to the salt mines of Siberia. Perhaps the course followed in respect to Fritz Kuhn might be a precedent for others with similar ideologies.

WHERE DO THEY STAND?

THE RECENT EXPERIENCE BY WHICH the City Hall has lost one department head temporarily and another permanently should undoubtedly have convinced the City Council of the necessity for clear and definite thinking now on the replacement question in other branches of its services.

Many senior men, key figures in their respective offices, are at present engaged on a temporary basis. They have been retired on reaching superannuation age and, in the majority of instances, have been rehired for the duration. At this stage, it might be well to re-examine that phrase to see what is actually meant. The war in Europe is over and many of the City Hall personnel who left for active service may be expected back in the near future. That appears highly probable whatever may be Canada's participation in the Pacific theatre. It becomes a question for the council to decide whether or not it meant final victory over all enemies or victory in Europe as the terminating point of service for those rehired for the duration.

At all events, jobs will be required for the men coming back, if the veterans wish to resume them. The situation will be relieved to a very material extent by the fact that replacements were made on a temporary basis. Protection of seniority rights for those absent with the forces also poses a problem. They have been promised as good or better jobs when they return. To date those who have resumed service with the city have been so small in number the matter has not achieved any great significance.

There is, however, a neat problem in at least one department where a deputy head left for service and was replaced by another man who also left later to join the forces. Assuming both wish to return, where do they stand in respect to protection of their seniority? And what is the position of the man who has carried on in the absence of both?

The latter point draws attention, too, to the position of juniors who have advanced ahead of those on leave of absence and have proved their competence in the more senior jobs. It is to be assumed the regulations laid down early in the war will be followed, but enunciation now of plans for the immediate future might avoid a lot of heart-burning and disorganization when those who served their country are reabsorbed into the civic service.

ADDED STATURE

YEHUDI MENUHIN, 29, WHOSE ARTISTRY with the violin has won him world-wide fame, gains added stature from the attitude with which he has taken his draft call. Informed he had passed his physical examination and had been classified fit for service, the former prodigy stated:

"I would have felt rather disillusioned about my physical fitness had I been classified otherwise. I am anxious to help win this war in any capacity I can."

And the hopes of music lovers here and elsewhere will be that the capacity in which he is selected to serve will not destroy the magic of his hands.

STONE BUILDER

IT MAY BE AN ANACHRONISM FROM boyhood hours when he worked busily on sand dams and perishable ramparts on the beach, building carefully the structures which an invading tide would destroy. It may just be a holdover from a carefree age. But there is a deep satisfaction to the amateur's construction of a stone jetty in the relative shallows of a warm lake. To it may be joined a pride of creation, an establishment of form from the rubble of a pile of boulders. And with it goes a certain novelty.

Chest deep he stands in the water where the end of his jetty will reach. He must start at the deepest part, since his choice boulders are needed to give the project strength at the greatest depth. He finds amazement in his ability to lift big rocks beneath the surface and glories in his strength, intentionally ignoring the displacement theories of weight. He cannot do a completely satisfactory job unless he submerges frequently to see that the base is settling properly in its required position. That gives him an immense sense of mystery, of triumph over an unnatural element. He likens his endurance to that of the pearl divers of the Persian Gulf, takes on himself the mantle of a hero of a Jules Verne story. His is a vastly important job, calling for unique powers and abilities.

Stone by stone he puts his jetty in place, leaving, regretfully, the deeper water of its extremity for the shallows where his efforts take on the appearance of a child playing with the pile of stones. Finally the walls of his jetty take form, emerge above the surface, each stone nicely placed to wedge its neighbor in a cohesive structure of strength. And then he turns to the prosaic work of filling in. It is a slow process, but his project is eventually finished, offering firm, dry footing out into the lake.

There is a subtle pleasure to his survey of the completed job, that village-blacksmithy feeling of something attempted, something done. But even though he may find many uses for it, his pride will never be quite as great in accomplishment as it was in the building, when he borrowed a superlative aura of importance.

B. T. Richardson

SAN FRANCISCO.

THOUGH THE MIDDLE powers have secured substantial concessions to demands to narrow the wide gap in influence and responsibility between senior and medium nations, the fight over this central issue in the structure of the world security organization has by no means been won.

The arguments for and against giving to non-great nations more influence in decisions of peace and war in the future, are the kind of arguments by which electorates in many countries will decide whether the world organization makes its decisions on a genuine democratic basis in which they can trust, or whether, recoiling from it, they decide that, after all, they must again rely on their own powers of self-defence. Inevitably Canada has assumed a leading part in the committee work on the problem of the Security Council. But other countries that have fought in the war, and know they will have to fight again if the peace is disturbed, are equally anxious for representation at the level where responsibility will reside for maintaining the peace.

Within the Latin-American bloc, unanimous on many issues, Brazil sought representation on the council beyond the claims of a small nation, and was expected to ask for a permanent seat. Yet it is true that many small nations, realizing their potential is insignificant in the scales of peace and war, opposed the claims of middle powers, on the grounds they would narrow the choice of nonpermanent members. The extent that seats are openly or tacitly reserved for middle powers will reduce the chances of small nations ever being elected to the council.

IN ADDITION to five permanent council members, the Dumbarton Oaks draft provided for six non-permanent seats. The big-power concession already made at San Francisco has been to insert wording that "due regard" be given in the first instance to the peace contributions of candidates for the six seats and to equitable geographical distribution. The words, "in the first instance," are weasel words, and no one knows precisely what they mean. But American sources explained this was intended to give priority to nations possessing military and industrial weight.

This concession was all very well, as far as it went. The original Dumbarton Oaks draft provided that nations specially affected should participate in discussions of the council. The Canadians declared this was not enough, that nations specially affected should sit as members and vote when they would be called upon to contribute to maintaining the peace; and also they proposed that the assembly lay down definite rules to guide election of non-permanent members. If it fell to Canada, for instance, to act with other nations in settling disorder, the public would hold the government at Ottawa, and not the Security Council at world headquarters, accountable.

THESE SUGGESTIONS ran into six substantial counter-arguments. The first was that, as originally drafted, the council would admit nations to discussions affecting their interests. Secondly, the big powers quickly agreed to go farther at San Francisco and provide that non-permanent members be elected on the basis of their contributions to peace, as well as to their geographical location. It would be difficult, it was argued, to establish yardsticks to measure the stature of nations precisely, and if that was done it would limit the choice of the assembly. The end of the argument was that the council was unlikely to argue against the majority of the assembly. The council, in any case, will represent 65 per cent of the people of the world, and its decisions will always represent a world majority. The fifth argument was that council decisions, requiring seven votes, must necessarily include two non-permanent members.

The final argument has been that, in any case, a nation called to furnish troops must first have a military agreement to do so, and it can refuse to sign. In this way, any nation can exercise a virtual veto on the authority of the council to require it to furnish troops.

A RELATED argument followed the line that it is up to the assembly to elect proper non-permanent members to the council. If it sent powerless nonentities to the council, incapable of acting with the big powers in an emergency, it would be too bad for all concerned. The Canadian proposal bearing on this point suggested the assembly adopt rules for electing council members. Some obvious cases, it was argued, should be dealt with. A nation in default in its dues or obligations should not be eligible. A nation might disqualify itself by refusing ever to fight.

The final problem of the council was potentially most dangerous; it was the small nations' proposal to enlarge the council. Chile suggested 15 members, Dominican Republic 14 or 15, Ecuador 13, Mexico 14, Honduras 15, Iran 15. All these, except one, were Latin American states. Fortunately, the United States was alert to this peril and was reported to have put its foot down.

A larger council would be unwieldy, lacking in the world's confidence. In previous international conferences, notably the aviation conference at Chicago last year, the Latin Americans seized on the tactics of enlarging the council to widen their chances of achieving seats. The world aviation council was raised to 21 members, and thereby greatly weakened. Against this raid, the United States then weakly conceded the small-nation case, and the result was a difficult, impotent organization. The Latin Americans were trying this game again at San Francisco, with some other nations attracted to the sport.

The War Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign News Analyst

The leftist tide which is sweeping across Europe seems to be dangerously high for the throne of Belgium.

King Leopold—who was released recently by U.S. troops near Salzburg, Austria, where he had been held prisoner by the Germans—is reported to have said he won't be returning to his capital for some time because of his "state of health." Actually, of course, he was deprived of his throne May 30, 1940, by an order which was approved by the Belgian cabinet in Paris.

Leftist groups in Brussels shrug away the "state of health" explanation. Their terse response is that it's for Parliament to decide whether Leopold is in a position to fulfill the duties of king. Leopold was shown of his prerogatives three days after he had surrendered the Belgian army to the invading Germans, thereby exposing the left flank of the British forces to the fury of the German attack. His supporters declared he had no other course than to capitulate to the enveloping enemy, especially since countless Belgian civilians had mingled with their troops and were being killed in the swirling battle. But shouts of "treason" and "pro-German" were heard in the streets of Paris.

Leopold's surrender, and his loss of royal prerogatives in the passions of the moment, by no means explain his present predicament. Belgium, like neighboring France and so many other continental countries, is caught in the epochal struggle between the "left" and the "right." If the left wins, the throne presumably will go. Leopold really doesn't figure greatly in the scheme of things. A dynasty and the way of life of a nation are at stake.

Letters To The Editor

MUSSOLINI HISTORY

Mr. Stanley Western asserts that "Mussolini gained his power as a Socialist, who turned Fascist. The real (natural?) action of a Socialist and the fruition of socialism."

Mussolini was expelled by the Socialist Party of Italy in 1914. He established the first fascist combatant, which later became the Fascist Party, on March 23, 1919. He did not come to power until October, 1922, eight years after his expulsion. His first government contained a few Right Liberals and Catholic clericals, but no Socialists or Communists.

Admittedly many Socialist leaders made the appalling blunder of allowing ideological bigotry to blind them to the necessity of co-operation with other anti-Fascists in time to prevent disaster. They were, therefore, largely responsible for the rise of Hitler and the unspeakable horrors of recent years. But in most countries they eventually saw the errors of their ways, and Socialists joined forces with Liberals, Communists and all other anti-Fascists in the various resistance movements of Europe. Unfortunately, this unity was not accomplished until catastrophe had overwhelmed them, and was a case of locking the stable door after the horse had been stolen. Nonetheless, very few Socialists—or for that matter, Communists or Liberals—turned Fascist. Fascism when it came to power did so by the aid and support of powerful Tory-minded people, who were more interested in preserving their own wealth and power than in the welfare of their countries. Witness the cases of Italy, Germany, Spain, Greece, France, etc.

And thousands of Socialists have proved by facing torture and death in their most horrible forms that the "real action" of a Socialist is to fight against Fascism to the bitter end. Of course, I do not include such "Socialists" as the Trotskyists, and Norman Thomas and his "Peace Now" associates.)

Mr. Western is also mistaken in suggesting that Mussolini was on bad terms with the Papacy. Since 1929, when the Lateran treaties were concluded and Mussolini recognized Papal sovereignty over Vatican City, and paid 750,000,000 lire in cash, and the interest at 5 per cent on 1,000,000,000 lire of state bonds in settlement of Papal claims for the loss of sovereignty of the Papal states (taken over by Italy in 1870), relations were not seriously strained, except by the dispute over the Fascist monopoly

Victoria Soldiers Lauded in Article In English Paper

The story of the heroic battles of the Canadian Scottish Regiment in Europe, their friendship with the English of the Isle of Wight and Sussex, and the mayor of Ryde who "would move all hell" to see the Scottish were given the means of entertainment and additional comfort, is contained in an article written by a military observer in the Isle of Wight Times.

The issue of the Times containing the article was brought to Victoria by two wounded veterans, Sgts. Basil A. Robinson and Joseph Hoy Cain, who arrived in the city on the day of the German surrender.

Both soldiers were wounded in the Normandy fighting, Robinson in the head and Cain in the leg. Robinson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Robinson, Ganges, Salt Spring Island, was born in England in 1918, while Cain, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Cain, live at 102 Niagara Street, is a native of Victoria.

The Times article said of the C.S.R.: "This battalion of the Scottish was one of the D-Day assault units. Surmounting the hazards of the first landings, it retook the important village of Put-on-Bessin two days after landing against fierce SS and tank opposition and went on to fight in a series of bitter battles in the bridgehead."

"MAGNIFICENT FIGHTERS"

"In the final attack on Caen, the Scottish took Cussy on the western side. It was here those magnificent fighters went in so close behind their own supporting barrage that the Germans had no time to react before the Canadians were right on top of them. The enemy were frankly surprised and expressed amazement at the way the Scottish followed their own shells in to the objective which they took after severe hand-to-hand fighting."

"Approaching Falaise, the Scottish advanced on the slopes of Hill 168 against 88-millimetre guns and Tiger tanks. The battle was so close and fierce that the Canadians were seen pounding on the sides of German tanks, thinking them to be their own! At Falaise they helped to close the gap on the German army and handled hundreds of prisoners."

THESE FINE MEN

The outspoken regent of the Scottish on leaving the Isle of Wight also made English proud. The article continues: "These

Gill German Wed This Afternoon in All-Naval Ceremony

A classic gown of ivory satin and lace, featuring a square neckline, long sleeves and a long, full skirt forming a short train, was chosen by Gillian Anne (Gill) German for her marriage this afternoon at 3 in Queen of Peace Church, Esquimalt, to Lieut. Frederick Charsley Frewer, R.C.N.

A coronet of fresh white flowers held in place the bride's veil of lace, worn by the groom's great-great-grandmother in 1837, and she carried a bouquet of calla lilies. The gift of the groom was a gold star and crescent pendant set with pearls, a family heirloom.

Father A. B. W. Wood, R.C.N., chaplain, performed the marriage ceremony for the daughter of Capt. Barry German, R.C.N., N.O. I.C., Esquimalt, and Mrs. German, and the second son of Capt. and Mrs. G. D. Frewer, Indian Road, Toronto. Schubert's "Ave Maria" was played during the signing of the register.

Twin frocks of ivory chiffon velvet were worn by the bride attendants, Mrs. R. W. A. Dunn and Mrs. A. B. Rivers. Blush pink gladioli were in their hair and also in their arm bouquets together with blue larkspur.

Lieut. R. Huntington, R.C.N. V.R., was groomsmen and ushering were Lt.-Cmdr. D. Groos, R.C.N.; Lieut. J. Coulter, R.C.N.; Pay-Lt. F. Wade, R.C.N.; Lieut. R. W. A. Dunn, R.C.N.V.R. There was a guard of honor of 12 cadets from the senior term at Royal Canadian Naval College.

A reception was held at Dockyard House, H.M.C. Dockyard, where Capt. and Mrs. German assisted the couple in receiving the guests.

Lieut. and Mrs. Frewer will reside in Victoria following a honeymoon up-Island. Taking leave of the guests, the bride wore a tailored grey flannel suit with navy blue hat and accessories and a corsage bouquet of gardenias.

Nursing and National Health

IV.—OUR CANADIAN NURSING FABRIC

The women who were the superintendents of Canada's early Schools of Nursing were women of great vision. They built better than they knew. Their leadership inspired their students towards creating, maintaining and expanding a scientific efficient nursing service throughout the country. It is but thirty-six years since Miss Mary Agnes Selvey threaded the sturdy warp of Canada's nursing fabric. Each strand had its origin in a small local nurses' association or hospital alumnae association. These strands gradually became entwined to form the provincial organizations which are now the nine strong threads of the Canadian Nurses Association. The total membership for the year 1945 is 22,000.

In keeping with its basic philosophy that the nursing profession is responsible for safeguarding the public in the use of professional and non-professional nursing service, the Canadian Nurses Association endorses the principle that all who nurse the sick for hire be licensed, and stands behind the provincial associations in the protection of standards of registration. The national association is primarily interested in raising the standards of nursing care, and in making this better nursing care available, as needed, to all citizens, regardless of their ability to pay.

The affairs of the Canadian Nurses Association are conducted by an Executive Committee which functions as an advisory council and whose members include the presidents of the nine provincial associations. It, in turn, is a member of the International Council of Nurses and shares in the responsibility for promoting better nursing standards on an international basis. The affairs of the Association are kept before the membership through the pages of the official journal "The Canadian Nurse".

The national association took up the problems of its constituent members from its inception. Such vital matters as the registration of nurses, development of district nursing to meet the urgent needs of Canada's frontiers, improvement in conditions for nursing throughout the Dominion occupied the attention of the Association. It is its belief that the conditions of fair employment can best and most effectively be secured through co-operation and a process of public education, since any arbitrary regulation of working conditions for nurses without consideration of the patient violates the spirit of nursing.

To facilitate its work, the Association has formed within itself special interest groups according to the major fields of nursing: Hospital and School of Nursing Section, Public Health Section and General Nursing Section. Through the Committee on Nursing Education the interests of these three sections are interwoven in an overall design of improved standards of nursing education.

Many new threads are about to be woven into our Canadian nursing fabric. Although the portion so far revealed is not without flaws, yet it is of a quality and a durability of which all Canadians may be justly proud.

GROW OLD PLEASANTLY

A philosopher, who is on the optimistic side, writes me: "My mother is now 75 and I am trying to keep her spirits alive and show her and others, both young and old, that age has many untold and fascinating experiences to which they may look forward as eagerly and yearningly as a young man or woman looks for 21. I want to teach that growing old is an art and that age is an accomplishment."

More power to him if he can do it. I can think of no greater missionary work anyone can perform than lightening the gloom that hangs over age, and makes us dread growing old more than we do death itself. For in spite of the poet's invitation to come and "grow old along with him for the best is yet to be," we would all decline the bid if we had any say-so in the matter.

Certainly it would take a miracle worker to change age from what it is to what we would like it to be, for age is not the dawn in which we look starry-eyed towards the future. It is the twilight in which we take off our spectacles and muse upon the past, which is none too cheerful a diversion. And, no matter how much we kid ourselves into believing we are still mere girls and boys in our fifties and sixties and that even when we are 70 we are still young, in our hearts we know it is not true.

We know we have slowed down, mentally and physically; our joints creak; we have had to put on bifocals and get hearing aids, or else say "heh?" to people who are trying to talk to us, and having our faces lifted hasn't lifted the burden of the years upon us.

Old age is still old age. It is no fun, but it can be made pleasant if we make up our minds to accept it as something that is bound to happen to us in life, unless we die young, and to prepare ourselves for it.

The best way to do this is to keep going. Keep busy. Stick to your job whatever it is. When you retire from business, you also retire from everything that makes life interesting. The reason so many old people are bored and bored is because they sit down on the do-nothing stool, with no occupation except to listen to their arteries harden.

The next rule for making old age a pleasure instead of a penance is to keep yourself independent. Don't spend everything you make as you go along. Lay up something for your old age. When we are young, money doesn't much matter. If we are pretty and gay, people like to have us about because we are good to look at and amusing, but when we are old, we have to throw in a prize with ourselves in order to be popular. And don't go to live with your children as long as there is an Old Peoples' Home in your community.

There is no way you can change the weak tea of age into the champagne of youth, but it needn't be such a bitter drink if you will keep from acquiring "ways," avoid falling into ruts, change your opinions as often as you do your shirt, keep in circulation and deny yourself the pleasure of self-pity.

War Property SAVED... not SACRIFICED!

Over three billion dollars' worth of war plants and supplies are now owned by the Canadian Government... paid for by our Victory Bonds and taxes. The Liberals and Conservatives are planning to turn these plants and supplies over to Big Business at fire sale prices—in fact, in some cases this has already been done.

THIS GRAB MUST BE STOPPED because Big Business has no intention of using these plants in peacetime. They will be closed or slowed down to avoid competition.

Let Us Use These Plants For Our Own Benefit

USE electrical and arms plants	TO produce radios, refrigerators and other household accessories.
USE aircraft and chemical plants	TO make housing materials, produce fertilizer, convert agricultural products to industrial uses.
USE jeeps, buses, trucks, bulldozers, tractors, steamshovels	TO expand cheap public transportation, aid farmers and municipalities.
USE military sites, airfields, barracks	TO build summer camping sites and recreational centres for youth.
USE hospital supplies	TO equip hospitals across Canada.
USE kitchen and restaurant equipment	TO install proper cafeterias for free lunches in all Canadian schools.

These are only a few examples of the constructive use which will be made of our war property by a CCF government.

Warning!

Prepare yourself for the wildest flood of smear propaganda ever unleashed on this long-suffering nation. Big business is the author of this smear. Through "front" organizations, such as the Public Information Association and General Relations Service, Limited, headed by B. A. Trestrail, and others... by means of radio, the press, and the mails... Big Business is spending fantastic sums on its smear-scare campaign... ENTIRELY AGAINST THE CCF.

Why?—Big Business knows the CCF threatens its power, its monopolies, its strangle hold on the life of every farmer, every worker, every small businessman, every consumer—its power over YOU. Big Business and its Liberal-Tory partners have no program, and no answer to the CCF program. So they resort to the Hitler method of smear and falsehood.

The CCF asks for your reason, calm and good judgment.

Judge the CCF on its program, developed by and for the people themselves... judge it on the brilliant record of the CCF Government in Saskatchewan... JUDGE IT ON TRUTH.

Civil Defence Here Told to Carry On

Order to disband the civil defence forces in Canada will be made by the military general staff as soon as all possible danger is past, W. C. Mainwaring, chairman of the advisory council, Provincial Civilian Protection Committee, told a meeting of key

Mr. Mainwaring gave reasons why members of civil defence have been asked to carry on. The federal and provincial governments had urged him to impress on members the absolute necessity for continuing their duties, he said.

Alderman J. A. Worthington, on behalf of the civil defence organization and the City Council, thanks Mr. Mainwaring for his assistance to the city.

Inspector A. H. Bishop, Victoria controller, asked for 25 volunteers to take a special course in fire fighting under Chief A. Munroe, who addressed the group on aspects of civil defence and fire fighting.

Members who volunteered to take this course will be notified by letter.

Half of Canada Thinks Japs Never Will Be Good

By CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

TORONTO—The Canadian general public, as it swings its war energies from prostrate Germany to Japan, has some rather interesting shades of differences in its attitude towards the two countries.

From Pearl Harbor days, the Canadian public has viewed Japan as the greater obstacle to an Allied victory. From the first, the public has assumed that it would take a great deal longer to defeat Japan than to defeat Germany. Now, in its latest survey, interviewing for which was carried out just prior to V-E Day, the Canadian Institute finds that Canadians are more pessimistic about Japan's chances of ever becoming a peaceful, civilized country than they are in the case of Germany.

BROAD QUESTION

In conducting this survey of opinion, Gallup Poll reporters made their approach through this question:

"Do you believe it would be possible for Germany to become a good nation within 20 years or so after the war, do you think it would take longer than that, or do you think she never can?"

The public was then asked its opinion with regard to Japan.

While the phrase "good nation" is admittedly a broad one, careful testing of the wording showed that it meant the same thing to a maximum number of people, and conveyed the general meaning better than other words.

In the case of Germany, 12 per cent of those interviewed were undecided, and in the case of Japan, 18 per cent. This undecided group has been eliminated in the following tabulations, which are based only on those with an opinion.

	Germany	Japan
Yes, in 20 years	29%	16%
Would take longer	29%	31%
Never can	22%	51%

In other words, while a third of the population believes that Germany can never become a decent nation, slightly more than half of the population feels the same thing about Japan. Moreover, in the case of Japan, the largest group in every area of the country felt that Nippon could never be taught to behave herself. This was not the case with Germany.

Canadians of British origin, comprising about half the total population, are less inclined to believe that Germany can be educated along democratic and peaceful lines than Canadians of other racial origins.

Comparison of the attitude toward Germany and Japan does not, of course, mean that Canadians favor a so-called "soft peace" with Germany. On the contrary, polls conducted throughout the war with that country indicate that Canadian mood towards the sort of terms which should be imposed on Germany has tended to toughen as the war proceeded, until, according to its latest poll, comparatively few supporters of a "soft peace" for Germany can be found in Canada.

Victoria Nature Talks

By ROBERT CONNELL

SOME WAYSIDE PLANTS

Last week we were in the hills, more than 1,000 feet above the sea. Some of the plants that grow there are only to be seen by the aspiring climber; others common enough in the lowlands are seen among the cliffs and gullies under new aspects and in association with new neighbors. In the lowlands and the immediate neighborhood of the city let us see what mid-May shows us by well-beaten ways.

The common camass is well out and is almost the sole contributor of blue to the scene, though the larger species is already entering the field with its taller habit and more symmetrical flowers. Following close on the heels of the common or western buttercup is the straight-beaked one, its leaves with narrow segments and its flowers on the average larger. It grows in places where water has been lying recently. The flowers are sometimes double, but not as commonly as in the western species. The western has been very rich in growth this year and double flowers frequently, to be met with a mile or more from the sea, but it is now on the decline. The pretty little flower of the common vetch, with purplish standard and rosy-red wings, sprinkle the heavier undergrowth with gems of color. In moist places the spring-beauty's flowers make a charming show. The silvery-white petals, oblong in most of their length, are striped with mauve. The shining leaves and stems add to the appearance of freshness suggested by the name.

GOAT'S BEARD
That sturdy alien, the purple salsify, is just opening out its striking flowers. The appearance of the plant as a whole is stiff with its straight stem, narrow leaves, and conspicuous pointed bracts about the flower-head, but in masses it is a very effective contributor to the landscape of the open fields or vacant lots. It is sometimes known as "goat's beard," an old-fashioned name said to be given because of a fancied resemblance of the curious round seed-heads to the beard of a goat.

The wild crabapple is in flower, one of our handsomest wild fruit bearers. Fortunately there are still some to be found within the city limits. The saskatoon bushes are also bearing their racemes of snowy white blossoms, bringing back to former prairie dwellers remembrances of old days. Not only as an agreeable contribution to the settler's table but as an important item in the old-fashioned pemmican, its dark-blue fruit has played an important part in the history of the middle west.

Already the wild blackberry's white blossoms are out. Normally the small fruiting flowers are found on their own bushes and the larger staminate flowers on theirs; sometimes, however, the distinction ceases and both are found on the same plant.

WILD STRAWBERRIES
In one of our moist fields a wealth of wild strawberry flowers is now seen and you might well expect a corresponding abundance of fruit later on. Yet I have never seen a berry on these plants. At any rate their snowy flowers are a pretty sight to him who ventures just off the beaten path. Not far from them, but in the shade of a young alder wood, the ground is completely hidden over a considerable space by wild lily of the valley. Just about to come into flower, the spikes are at present covered with little white balls.

On the edge of the wood the large-leaved geum is bearing its yellow flowers, rather inconspicuous and even disappointing to the eye familiar with the striking garden species, which in their scarlet and crimson come to us from Chile. Ours resemble closely the European yellow geum or avens, a plant credited with extraordinary healing virtues and so called Herb Bennet, an abbreviation of Herba Benedicta, the ancient Latin name, the blessed herb. In later days it was used to lay in clothes chests as a moth repeller.

As the path winds up a wooded slope we come on the Oregon fairy-bells, a liliaceous plant with outspread leafy branches and pairs of pendant creamy-white bells. As the bells are on the underside of the branches they are not always conspicuous.

C.C.F. to Cut Hours Of Work, Says Bryce

The C.C.F. will achieve, useful employment at good wages for every worker, through national economic planning and the fullest use of resources, F.O. Murray Bryce, C.C.F. candidate for Victoria, told a meeting at the home of Mrs. D. M. Smith, 1353 Pandora Street, Friday night.

Discussing the C.C.F. labor program, Mr. Bryce said his party would reduce hours of work to ensure better distribution of employment, and it would institute compulsory collective bargaining in all public and private enterprises, he said.

The establishment of high minimum wage standards for all of Canada and vacations with pay were also cited as part of the C.C.F. program, he concluded.

The painting, "Mount Goodsir," depicting a scene from Lake O'Hara in the Rocky Mountains, work of J. W. G. Macdonald, Vancouver, will be presented to the captain and officers of Royal Navy warships now in Canadian waters, by the Vancouver Island Region, Federation of Canadian Artists, according to Hon. Mark Kesteven, president of the local artists' group. The painting will be on display at the Marionette Library this week.

GLANCING over the major league baseball standings it is hard to believe your eyes when they show the New York Giants still resting atop the National League. The New Yorkers have licked the tar out of the western clubs in recent games and some of the experts are predicting the club will be tough to beat out for the bunting. One of the main factors in the Giants' success is the manner in which manager Mel Ott is clouting the ball. As long as Ott continues to hit the Giants are liable to stay up there. He pulls the club along. He inspires fellows like Lombardi, Kerr and Weintraub to keep pace with him. And the pitchers take heart.

THERE'S not much doubt that the Giants are playing over their heads right now and there's no doubt that Ott is hitting the ball better than he ever figured. Ott is the kind of fellow who still can't realize that he's manager of the club handled for so many years by the late John McGraw. Ott's players give him the same playing ability as they gave McGraw because of his mild technique and the fact that he plays the game so well himself. Of course, the Giants are liable to slip back when the hot weather arrives as veterans like Lombardi are not going to be able to stand up when the pressure gets real tough. They've been around too long.

OF COURSE, the real big surprise of the majors is those bums from Brooklyn. On paper the Dodgers looked terrible when the training season was on. But Leo Durocher got his men mentally fit and with Dixie Walker hitting as he did last season, the Dodgers started to knock over the other teams left and right. They set up an 11-game winning streak that was finally broken by Pittsburgh last Thursday. Class will probably tell and the St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh will rise but all these games won this spring are likely to prove mighty important in the final reckoning come September.

MAJOR role played by sport as a morale booster to prisoners behind German barbed wire is told by P.O. Edward Houston, an Ontario airman following his recent release from a prison camp. A great sport fan, Houston was a Nazi prisoner for a year and organized softball, touch rugby, basketball and such games as well as soccer leagues in different camps to which he was sent after the bomber in which he was a navigator was lost on a raid.

He said that softball players who hit home runs were "not popular" and explained that "a hit over the fence usually meant a lost ball unless someone came by and heaved it back." "In one camp we had three softball divisions going at once," he said. "One was for the top teams, one for the medium players, and a third for the boys—many of them Australians and Britons—who were beginners. We also played with the Americans wherever we ran into them at camps."

Houston said that one of the greatest softball games was one played last summer between teams representing eastern and western Canada. The west won 8 to 7 by scoring a run in the final inning.

He had nothing but praise for efforts of the Red Cross and Auxiliary Service organizations who sent in equipment such as softball bats and balls, as well as food parcels.

Portland Moves Well Ahead With Double Victory

Old J. P., the rain-maker, finally relented enough in the northwest last night to permit a full Coast League baseball schedule and give the pace-setting Portland and Seattle clubs a chance to fatten their leads over their California rivals.

Portland's double victory over Los Angeles moved the Beavers six and a half games ahead of the Rainiers, who whipped San Francisco in the first game of a twin bill and wound up in a 10th inning deadlock in the afterpiece.

Oakland skidded a game and a half behind Seattle in losing to Sacramento, while San Diego edged to within half a game of the Acorns by trimming Hollywood.

Portland, which like Seattle has been idle for the last three nights due to rain and travel delay, trounced the Angels 8 to 1 and 10 to 2. Two of the Beavers' most reliable hurlers, Roy Helser and Ad Liska, held the Angels to six and eight hits, respectively. Helser's victory in the opener was his eighth of the year against two defeats, while submarine Liska notched his seventh against three losses in the nightcap.

The Rainiers won 1 to 0 in their seven-frame opener and were knotted 3 to 3 with the Seals when the regulation second game was called at the end of the 10th inning due to a league rule that no game can be started within 10 minutes of midnight. Southpaw Carl Fischer turned in a classic three-hit hurling job for Seattle in the first tilt. A two-run Rainer rally in the nightcap's ninth inning knotted the score and produced a no-decision contest.

St. Louis Browns Gain

Stephen's Homer Wins

Thanks to Vern Stephens' home-run spurt, St. Louis Browns were closing in on the American League leaders today, showing flashes of the form that won them the 1944 championship.

Only two games off the pace because of Stephens' seventh round ripper, a grand-slam wallop that plastered New York Yankees, 4 to 1, Luke Sewell's club has won five of seven at home against the eastern invaders. One of the other two was a tie.

Stephens had plenty of company in yesterday's slugging bees as three major leaguers hit for all four with the sacks loaded. Luis Olmo did the job for Brooklyn Dodgers in their 15 to 12 shellacking of the Chicago Cubs and Old Jimmy Foxx belted his first in three years for Philadelphia Phils who lost nevertheless to St. Louis Cardinals, 11 to 8.

Although the long-distance slugger stole the show in the arc-light games yesterday, the only day tilt was a pitcher's dream. Dave Ferriss, the Boston Red Sox phenomenon, tossed his third shutout in four straight triumphs, blanking Chicago, 2 to 0. In 36 big-league innings, the army dischargee has allowed only two runs. Bob Johnson's double produced the winning scores.

was the big thunder but Bill Nicholson, Andy Panko, Bill Hart and Goody Rosen also hit into the stands.

Foxx's 529th homer was wasted in a six-run Philly eighth inning because the Cards came back with four in the ninth to win for Ken Buckhardt who gained his third straight relief decision.

Jack Kramer got the benefit of Stephens' smash to boost his season mark to 4 and 1 on the credit side as Hank Borowy lost a tough four-hitter for his first defeat after five victories. Last time Borowy worked at Sportsman's Park during the Browns' successful flag drive, he dropped a two-hitter to Nelson Potter.

Although the American League managed to play two games, its first since Sunday, the rest of the calendar, Philadelphia at Cleveland and Washington at Detroit, was postponed. Southworth Runs Into String of Real Hard Luck

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The adage about "when it rains it pours," seems an apt descriptive of the woes that have befallen manager Billy Southworth and his St. Louis Cardinals.

About all the hard luck that could come to a manager over a whole season has dropped into Southworth's lap in rapid succession.

"There comes a time," he moaned, "when your pitching staff is in such shape that, you haven't anybody to spare in relief, come hell or high batting averages. That's the fix we're in right now."

While desertion from the club last Wednesday by Mort Cooper, ace right-hander, was admittedly a solid jolt to the team, it was only one in a continuing sequence.

Military inductions are a matter of course, so the loss of catcher Walker Cooper to the navy, and the departure Friday of southpaw pitcher Max Lanier for an army physical examination, are not in Southworth's hard-luck category. But these are:

Of the mound corps, George Dockins came home from Boston for treatment of a strained left shoulder; Harry Breechen is St. Louis bound for treatment of a sore arm; Ted Wilks still is with the club, but also nursing a sore arm.

Shortstop Marty Marion sprained an ankle and was out of the line-up more than two weeks. Al (Red) Schoendienst, Marion's substitute, dived for a grounder a few days later and dislocated his right shoulder. He still is out of the line-up.

Angie Bergamini injured a tendon in a slide into third base and has been on the injury list since. Now reserve infielder George Fallon has been notified to report for preinduction examination and is awaiting transfer of his papers here from Elmira, N.Y.

Latiff's Home Run Features Navy Win

Featured by third baseman Dick Latiff's towering home run over the centre field fence in the seventh and the smart clutch hurling of Don Johnson, Navy turned back the V.M.D., 7 to 3, in Friday night's ball game.

Making their first appearance in defence of the city championship they won last fall in a hectic series with the Army, the bluejackets trotted out a well-balanced nine that displayed plenty of power at the plate and capable of turning in a good defensive exhibition.

Johnson, mixing a fast ball with a sharp-breaking curve, hurled hitless ball for five and one-third innings. Reg Patterson's 340-foot drive to deep left field for two bases in the sixth, being the first hit off the right-hander. It was not until the eighth inning that the V.M.D. could get a runner across the slab. Johnson struck out seven and walked a like number. He gave up eight hits.

Will Shouldice, making his first start since joining the V.M.D. outfit, hurled shutout ball for four innings, gave up one-third in the fifth and weakened noticeably in the last four innings to allow six more runners to trot home. Shouldice was nicked for 12 hits, including four for extra bases. He fanned eight and walked six, two of them intentionally.

GOOD FIELDING
V.M.D. threatened in the first inning when Johnson had trouble with his support, walking Restell and Barnswell the first two men to face him. Work popped to Latiff after falling twice to lay down a bunt and Patterson lined into a double play. Navy looked dangerous in the fourth when they loaded the bases, but failed to score when some smart baseball by the V.M.D. paid off. With one away, Amon walked and Bruce followed with a double to left centre. Bartko was purposely walked to load the bases. Shouldice made a neat bare-hand play on McArde's ground smash to toss out Amon at the plate and Duz forced Bruce at third.

Navy broke the string of goose eggs on the scoreboard in the fifth. Latiff and Parkins came through with successive singles. Amon lashed a line single to centre, scoring Latiff, but Parkins was cut down at the plate on a fast relay by shortstop Strouger.

After Latiff had opened the seventh with his home run, the Navy went on to push three more runs across the plate with Amon's triple to deep right field being the payoff blow.

Pinch hitter Bobby Weigand's single to right field gave the Navy two more runs in the eighth. V.M.D. hit the score column for the first time in the eighth, when singles by Work, Robinson and Taylor combined with a couple of walks gave them two runs. Shipbuilders added one more in the ninth.

Amon with three for four led the Navy at the plate, while Robinson was the number one stickler for the V.M.D. with two for three.

Short score follows:
Navy 7 12 3
V.M.D. 3 8 2
Batteries—Johnson and Bartko; Shouldice and Patterson.

The organization has taken in former Communist, German front and Catholic party members and a trade union group and is headed by Fritz Mettlich, former Communist party leader who was liberated from a concentration camp at Sachsenhausen, the radio said.

No Hitler 'Double,' Says Secretary

SOUTHERN GERMANY (AP)—The much-discussed theory that Adolf Hitler had a double is discredited by his principal secretary of the last two years of the war.

"Those were just stories—he never had a double and never used one," said Gerhardt Herrgesell, who was perhaps as close to the Fuehrer as any man during that period.

Herrgesell, interviewed here Friday, said also that Hitler hoped desperately almost to the end that there would be a split in the Allies over Russia. . . . One of Hitler's last orders to Hermann Goering and Goebbels was to plant a story with British intelligence agents that the Russians had outfitted 200,000 Germans to use in a war against Britain, Herrgesell said.

History of Israel's Downfall Holds Warning for the Citizenry of Today

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

IF the extensive Scriptures indicated for this lesson—the books of Exodus and Numbers—prove too much, I suggest concentration on the passage in Acts 7. Here in Paul's defense before the High Priest and the Council, in Jerusalem, he summarized in a brief but masterly way the history of the founding and course of the Jewish nation, and its spiritual significance.

No one was better fitted to do that than Paul, for the great Christian Apostle was not only thoroughly versed in that history, but he had a deep love for his people, and Christianity was for him not the denial, but the fulfillment of his Jewish faith and teaching.

Why throughout the ages, and in our own time, has there been such persistent and intense interest in the life of a people, never numerous in comparison with vast other populations, and occupying a very small portion of territory among the great empires of the ancient world? Why should these records of things that happened many centuries ago, among a people who long before the Christian era had ceased to exist as a nation, be of such vital moment, not only for Jews of today who are seeking to regain that homeland and again attain national life, but also for the entire Christian world?

I think that it is because the records so strikingly set forth, and illustrate by example, the principles upon which true national life and welfare are founded; and also, that the records emphasize the warnings of danger when the principles of the good life, for individuals and nations, are disregarded or spurned.

Away back in the history of Israel was sounded the solemn warning in a day of national

Warm Tribute Paid to R.C.A.F.

LONDON (CP)—The influential London Daily Telegraph today published a lavish tribute to Canada's contribution to air supremacy through the R.C.A.F. and Canadians in the R.A.F.

The writer, F. W. Perfect, said "New British people realized the stupendous effort by which the Dominion of 12,000,000 people, starting almost from scratch, raised itself in five years to the fourth place in operations which will be adjudged by history to have been one of the decisive factors in the defeat of Germany."

The article traced the growth of the R.C.A.F., told the story of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, noted that Canadians fought on every air front, listed aces, casualties, decorations and concluded: "Canada, therefore, has every reason for pride in the fame of her sons in this war, and Britain has good cause for gratitude."

Big Mainliner Coming With U.A.L. President

One of the big Mainliners of United Air Lines will pay a call at Victoria airport a week hence incident to the visit of William A. Patterson of Chicago, President of United Air Lines.

On completing a tour of the air system which he controls, Mr. Patterson will reach Victoria next Saturday and will rest up during the week-end at the Empress Hotel.

H. Brian Renwick, U.A.L. district traffic manager, Vancouver, is in the city today making arrangements for the visit of his chief to Victoria.

According to Mr. Renwick, Mr. Patterson will reach the city by the C.P.R. afternoon boat from Vancouver, May 26, and will remain here until the following Monday. With a group of company officials accompanying him on his tour of inspection, Mr. Patterson will board the U.A.L. Mainliner at the Patricia Bay airport at 9 a.m. May 28 for the return trip east. It will be the first time that one of the big transcontinental airlines of the United Air Lines have ever visited this city.

Accompanying Mr. Patterson here will be H. E. Nourse, assistant to the president; Harvey Hancock, executive assistant; O. C. Richerson, regional manager

Now Naval Officer

C. Norman Willis, son of Alderman and Mrs. F. A. Willis, 414 Simcoe Street, has been commissioned as a sub-lieutenant with the R.C.N.V.R. and is now in eastern Canada. A recent graduate of U.B.C. in mechanical engineering, the 22-year-old officer was born in Victoria and received his early education at Victoria High School and Victoria College. A brother, F.O. Grant Willis, was killed in action with the R.C.A.F. overseas two years ago.

Necessary application forms and announcement now are being prepared by Col. F. T. Fairley, director of technical education, and will be distributed throughout the province about June 15, Mr. Perry said.

Students will be required to give an undertaking to repay the loan either in whole or in instalments, commencing one year after entering gainful employment, he said. The loan will not bear interest until the first payment is due.

The combination bursary and loan will be available to a student wishing to attend the University of B.C., Victoria College or a provincial normal school; to a student paying fees to attend a technical or vocational training school; or to a student within the province who has to move away from his home to secure higher education.

"No student will be assisted to attend an institution outside the province of British Columbia, if the course desired is offered at an institution within the province," Mr. Perry said.

On the new basis, "students who apply for assistance will estimate the extent of their needs and when this has been approved by the committees making the awards, assistance will be granted on the basis of 60 per cent bursary and 40 per cent loan," Mr. Perry said.

King Government Achievements Outlined By Mainland Candidate

Listing the accomplishments of the Dominion under the King government, Tom Reid, Liberal candidate for New Westminster, speaking in support of R. W. Mayhew, Victoria Liberal candidate in the forthcoming federal general election, said that while Canada's national debt had been increased to $10,000,000,000 through wartime spending, the carrying charges on that debt had only increased to $70,000,000.

The meeting was held at St. Mary's Hall, Oak Bay.

Mr. Reid said that average rate of interest on war loans floated during the last five years had been 2.57. The average carrying charges on Dominion government loans in effect in 1939 was 4.25 per cent, he said.

If the issue of conscription had been placed before the 245 members of Parliament and every man had voted as his constituents wanted him to, Canada would never have had conscription, Mr. Reid continued.

He said a high peak had been reached during war years in national income and plans already had been laid for bringing about full employment in the postwar period.

MAYHEW CONGRATULATED

Mr. Mayhew said in answer to charges of his Progressive Conservative opponent, Sir Henry Drayton, that Prime Minister Mackenzie King had telephoned and written congratulations to him following his speech on the conscription issue in the House of Commons.

Sir Henry had charged that Mr. Mayhew, Victoria's member in House, had voted against Victoria's seven-to-one affirmative on the plebiscite.

Mr. Mayhew read from Hansard a section of the speech in which he had attempted to interpret the Prime Minister's motion to send 16,000 draftees overseas. In addition to the unsolicited messages from Mr. King, which had remained private until the meeting, Mr. Mayhew received more congratulations from the opposition side of the House than he had from Liberal members, he said.

STRENGTH IN ONTARIO ONLY

Mr. Mayhew found that only in Ontario did the Progressive Conservative party have substantial strength and expectations of electing a substantial number of candidates.

In Quebec, he said, the party had nominated only 29 candidates, while support in the prairie provinces was doubtful. Mr. Mayhew believed the Progressive Conservatives could get no seats in Prince Edward Island and only two or three each in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

"I am not going to be a Peter and deny my leader," he said, "but I am not going to be a 'yes man' even to my leader."

Recover Goods Stolen 6 Years Ago

Six years ago, on Dec. 28, 1939, Detective Henry Jarvis investigated a report of robbery at the home of Mrs. E. A. Ortin, 2610 Chambers Street, and found a considerable number of household articles, including a radio, sewing machine, Electrolux and some jewelry had been stolen.

In Oak Bay police court today, after arrest late last night by Detectives Jarvis, P. Richards and Policewoman Alice Pye, a woman was charged with possession of some of the goods stolen from Mrs. Ortin's home.

Magistrate H. C. Hall remanded the woman to Friday in court at Oak Bay Municipal Hall, and set bail at $1,000 in one or two sureties.

Appeal Dismissed In Property Case

The Court of Appeal has dismissed the appeal of Eloise Mae Clelland (otherwise known as Eloise Mae McNabb), now the wife of Robert Waugh Wyllie of West Vancouver, from the judgment of Mr. Justice A. D. McFarlane in the Supreme Court Aug. 5 declaring that she held certain valuable properties worth at least $50,000 of the plaintiff, Capt. Arthur Clelland, in trust for him and must transfer them to him.

The appeal was heard in Victoria Jan. 24 before Mr. Justices H. B. Robertson, Sidney Smith and H. I. Bird, counsel being C. L. McAlpine, K.C., and Arthur Dawe for the plaintiff-respondent, and W. S. Owen and G. Bruce Duncan for the defendant-appellant.

Anonymous Gift of $1,000 for Jubilee

Royal Jubilee Hospital board of directors Friday night acknowledged the gift of $1,000 made in the "spirit of thanksgiving for victory in Europe."

F. E. Winslow, Royal Trust Co. manager in forwarding the donation, noted that it was from an anonymous giver who was a client of his company.

"It is," read the accompanying letter, "also an expression of the donor's appreciation of the rapid strides forward the hospital is making to meet all the requirements of the community."

Reports showed that April was the heaviest month since February, 1944. There were 364 patients and 54 babies in the hospital during one day in April, although official capacity has been set at 350 beds and 54 bassinets. 'Music for Millions' Has Tuneful Trio

Meet a tuneful and talented trio in the symphony conducted by Jose Iturbi in "Music for Millions," the new M.G.M. film starring Margaret O'Brien with Jimmy Durante, which opens Monday at the Capitol Theatre. There's Madeleine LeBeau playing flute, Mary Parker is the petite blonde blowing the trumpet and Katharine Balfour is the violinist. Actually, music is not their profession. They are young actresses with the studio predicts—bright futures. Slim, tawny-haired Madeleine with the interestingly deep voice and bewitching French accent, was born in Paris. From early childhood acting was her goal. She studied dramatics at the Ecole Emile DuBois and at the age of 15, while still a schoolgirl, Madeleine won her first footlight role. Successful appearances in "The Cheat," "La Cocotte" and other French comedies quickly established her as a stage favorite before the Nazi invasion in 1940 when she fled to Biarritz, then Madrid and finally Lisbon.

OAK BAY-PLAZA THEATRES
After a particularly happy engagement in which film fans have been enjoying a carnival of music, mirth and magselles, Columbia Pictures' "Ever Since Venus" will end its run at the Oak Bay and Plaza Theatres today. Ina Ray Hutton, Hugh Herbert, Ann Savage, Billy Gilbert, Glenda Farrell, Ross Hunter and Alan Mowbray are the funsters in the cast.

ATLAS THEATRE
There was a new "technical expert" recently on the M-G-M technicolor musical, "Meet Me In St. Louis," which stars Judy Garland with Margaret O'Brien at the Atlas Theatre. The film is set in the 1903 period of semi-bustles, corsets and many fancy undershirts—and authentic information about them comes from a reliable informant—an old Sears-Roebuck catalogue.

M. J. Coldwell, coming direct from the San Francisco Conference, speaking on "World Security," at Royal Victoria Theatre, Monday, 8 p.m.

Brilliant Musical Presented at York

Frank Sully scaled a studio wall to get his first part in motion pictures. After failing three times to get a job as a soldier in "Caravan," he rented a uniform, made his unorthodox entrance on the lot, mingled with the extras and then the improbable happened. The director singled him out for lines, and Sully's movie career began. The curly-haired young six-foot character actor, who appears in M-G-M's new musical, "Two Girls and a Sailor," opening at the York Theatre Monday, was born in St. Louis, Mo., son of Michael and Nancy Callahan Sullivan. He shortened the Sullivan after he became an actor because "Sully" had a better chance to fit on a marquee.

CADET THEATRE
A new high in the ultra-smart combination of white and gray is reached in a costume which will be worn by Esther Williams in "Bathing Beauty," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer technicolor musical now at the Cadet Theatre, in which she is co-starred with Red Skelton.

RIO THEATRE
Lovers of western melodramas will welcome the engagement at the Rio Theatre of "Sage Brush Heroes."

The picture stars that handsome Charles Starrett. There's plenty of thunderous action in "Sage Brush Heroes"—the thrill-packed drama of the great outdoors.

"Sage Brush Heroes" is showing today.
DOMINION THEATRE
They're at it again! Monty Woolley and Gracie Fields, the fabulous scream-team that sent laugh records toppling in "Holy Matrimony," are back on the screen in their newest 20th Century-Fox hilarity hit, "Molly and Me." And this time they're joined by Roddy McDowell to make the film currently at the Dominion Theatre a picture your heart will long remember.
